

Local News

Psychic's Journey In Search For Martin

By David Young

Tuesday 14th March 2006

continued...

She described who he'd been speaking to, including a man with a dog, and said she sensed he was very drunk and had not eaten.

With Martin's mother Karen by her side, the clairvoyant then left the bar and walked towards the dockside, claiming she was following Martin's path over two months earlier.

Ads by Goooooogle

Advertise on this site

A relative of Mr Kelly later confirmed that the route she identified was indeed the one CCTV pictures showed him taking that night - images nobody except the police and family have so far seen.

Web Design Belfast area?

Robust sites that will create sales impact, functionality and value

www.solstice-it.co.uk

As she approached the water, Mrs Lazarus broke it to emotional family members that she was sure Martin had "passed" and was now trapped below the water.

RAC Northern Ireland

20% off RAC breakdown cover online. Join now.

www.rac.co.uk

With images of a submerged archway recurring in her head, she and the Kelly family then boarded a boat and cruised round the docks looking for such a structure.

Their hour-long trip on the Laganside Company boat identified a number of areas that resembled her description, but, without the help of police divers, the water could not be searched.

"With Martin I felt straight away that he was under the influence of a lot of alcohol, got drunk and got lost in an area he didn't know," said Mrs Lazarus.

"What I would've loved to have said was that he was going to come back and he's just lost for a while.

"I am seeing Martin with no marks on him at all and I know his body's trapped and it can't come to the surface. It's in a sort of archway, behind concrete or near concrete with green moss, I sensed that straight away."

© 2004 Century Newspapers Ltd. All rights reserved.